What should someone feel in the first three seconds?

About me & skills

I tell stories through visuals. Every poster, reel and layout starts with one question: what should someone feel in the first three seconds? I design for events, campaigns and products, and I like systems that stay consistent from print to screen.

Why the design domain

A club is judged by what people see first: the poster, the post, the banner, the sign-up page.

I want to own that layer and keep it consistent, from the first announcement to the last photo wall.
